Down On Any of His Original Demands Despite Von Bernstorff Conference.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., June 3.—President Wilson worked for the better part of the day on the reply to the United States to Germany's answer to the original demand of protection of neutral vessels from submarine attacks.The president is writing the note himself. He has all the evidence at hand and after his conference with Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, has Germany's ideas clearly outlined.The situation has developed to the point where despite Count Von Bern-storff's visit on Wednesday, and the conference held with the president, it is now certain that the tone of the note will be firm and will demand as-urances that the German submarine commanders will hereafter respect the principles of international law.No particular reference has been made in official circles to the alleged admission of the state department that the Lusitania was equipped with four guns mounted and in a masked battery. This matter, it is understood, was brought into with Dudley Malone, collector of the Port of New York, who is said to have reported that nothing of the kind existed
when the vessel sailed.The president will pen the communication himself and it will probably be ready to go forward by the end of the week. It is said it will be as strong a state paper as the original letter was.Endorses Wilson.

Passing.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., June 3.—For two hours yesterday afternoon the committee on state affairs heard arguments on the anti-hazing bill to prohibit hazing at educational institutions in the state. President Charles R. Van Hise of the university; Regents D. Jones and A. P. Nelson appeared in opposition to the measure.Senator Culbertson said that those who opposed a bill of this character were in favor of lawlessness and he expressed the opinion that the state should withhold appropriations to the university until a bill of this character was upon the statute books. He told of some of the hazing pranks of the boys at Appleton College and declared that many a mother spent a weary night wondering if her son was being made the victim of these practices. A discipline of the students in class matters was within the hands of the student court and he said that such a bill should not be enacted into law.GERMAN TROOP SHIP

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Vlaardingen, Netherlands, June 3.—
The first herring caught this season by Dutch fishing boats was brought into this port during the third week of May and gave promise of a reduction in the price of fish, for it was accompanied by a large haul. The retail prices have soared recently beyond any previous limit and there has been considerable deprivation among the poor.Dutch fishermen have been particularly hardup since the North Sea was declared a war-zone. The dangers have been brought home forcibly to the Netherlands public by frequent reports of the blowing up of Dutch fishing boats by German aeroplanes and the occasional seizure of the boats by German destroyers, which have taken them into German ports and detained their crews on charges of espionage. The Dutch government has been obliged in order to prevent such occurrences, has issued a set of regulations requiring that in compliance with the declaration of neutrality by the Dutch government all Dutch fishermen must refrain from any act favorable or unfavorable to any of the belligerent nations.ENGLISH CORONER CALLS

For Food and Money.Washington, June 3.—News of how President Wilson's demand on the leaders of various military factions in Mexico for prompt restoration of peace in the revolution of the southern republic, is being received by interest in official and diplomatic quarters.The president's statement sent to Generals Carranza, Villa, Zapata, and others, publicly called upon them to settle their differences quickly and establish a government which the United States can recognize.The president warned them that failure to do so "within a very short time" would constrain the United States "to employ such measures as may be employed" to save the Mexican people by further devastation of infernal warfare.Mexican Consul General Carruthers at Chicago reported today that the Villa troops in a bank movement captured Siles and put Carranza cavalry forces to rout. Carranza, the Carranza commander, he said, is surrounded by Villa infantry and has lost grains and large quantities of supplies.Alisco Arredondo, head of the Carranza agency here today, issued comment on resident Wilson's Mexican demand. Carranza was the victim of many false reports, and added:
"Carranza has at last ordered advancing troops toward the city of Mexico which he will undoubtedly take before one week is over and I understand he will immediately establish there a provisional civil administration, until he can wipe out the results of the revolutionaries, and get the people to elect officers of constitutional government."Begin Red Cross Relief.
Distribution of American Red Cross relief supplies has begun in Monterey, Mexico. Consul General Carranza reported that one car of corn, one of beans and a car of flour had arrived.
The people are not allowed to buy more than three pounds of either

Tokio, June 3.—The resolution introduced in the house yesterday by the opposition expressing lack of confidence in the present administration was today rejected by a vote of 133 to 232. Extreme disorder marked the session today. All the members of the cabinet were in their seats while Kato demanded the recent negotiations with China. Kato, Hara, Mikai and Hogawa attacked them. The resolution as introduced yesterday charged the cabinet with having failed in the negotiations with China, from the beginning, with having aroused the suspicions of foreign powers, and with having harmed the prestige of the empire. Hoots, jeers and worthy allusions punctuated the speeches.
Premier Okuma and Minister Kato smothered the cries of the opposition.Great interest was attached to an-heavy shipments to Mexico before the European war, there has been a big increase in the price of munitions of war of domestic manufacture and of chemicals used in their making.On an average, powder has increased about 25 cents a pound. In July last, when powder was selling at 75 cents a pound, it is now quoted at $1 a pound on the average.

Gunpowder has advanced from 50 to 75 cents a pound. Picric acid, used in the manufacture of explosives, has advanced from 40 cents a pound to $1.70 a pound.Army rifles have advanced about 50 per cent in price.
Enormous sales of denatured alcohol have been made at prices ranging from 20 to 30 per cent higher than those of last year. The United States

SOLDIERS DOING THE WORK

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, June 3.—Reconstruction of destroyed villages in the lower part of the Argonne has commenced with hearing of the devastation that continues further north. The work is directed by a cooperative society of carpenters "Les Charpentiers de Paris."
Soldiers and peasants are doing a great deal of the work and thus earning wages. The work is being done for the purpose of providing shelter for returning refugees. The prefect of the department of the Meuse has arranged with the cooperative society for the construction of temporary dwellings, stores, barns and stables so as to insure the earliest possible return of the inhabitants at all points out of reach of the long range guns.The "Charpentiers de Paris" is the most flourishing of the numerous societies of France. Composed entirely of workmen, this institution began contracting for carpentry work on its own account with a capital of 135,000 francs. Last year it did 5,000,000 francs business, distributed 60 per cent dividend to its members in addition to the highest rate of wages paid in the trade. Since the beginning of the war it has paid to wives of its mobilized members the same allowances as those paid by the state. It continues these payments to widows of a considerable number of men who have been killed in battle. Since

TO USE ARGUMENTS INSTEAD OF BRIEFS

Attorneys for Chas. Pierce, President of Home Rule League, Will Not File Briefs.

It is understood that attorney for Charles Pierce, president of the Home Rule league, will not submit briefs to the court.

Mr. Pierce is awaiting a decision from the court on the result of arguments following his indictment for violating the corrupt practices act.

When the arguments were finished the court allowed ten days in which to file briefs. The district attorney had already submitted his arguments in writing.

Counsel for Mr. Pierce, however, decided that the oral arguments, which were transcribed into the records, will embrace all points that could be brought into a brief and the court record would answer the same purpose.

LARGE CROWDS HEAR MISS PEET LECTURE

JANESVILLE WOMEN TAKE ADVANTAGE OF GAZETTE'S FREE COOKING SCHOOL.

ENJOY TASTY MENUS

Samples of Delicious Viands Are Passed Out to the Spectators—Tomorrow's Program.

Program for Friday Afternoon...

Subject: "Garnishing."

Menu: Planked Steak, Fruit Salad, Lemon Meringue Pie, Lemon Coconut Cake, Lemon Coconut Filling.

The audience that filled Myer's Theatre this afternoon to hear Miss Peet, the Gazette's Better Foods Better Homes lecturer, was the largest of the week, plainly indicating that the interest in her demonstrations of scientific cookery is increasing daily. A number of the best known women of the city are found in the same seats every day and with note book in hand they can be seen jotting down the helpful hints that pop up repeatedly during the course of Miss Peet's entertaining talks.

"There was a time," says Miss Peet, "when I never saw a gray-haired woman in my cooking classes. They were very well satisfied with what they knew about cooking and failed to realize that this is a very big subject about which new ideas are being advanced every day and one in which there is always room for improvement. The best cooks realize this now, and I have them in my classes wherever I go."

Today at the fourth session of the Gazette Better Foods Better Homes course, Miss Peet spoke to a large audience on the important subject of economy. She believes that women should do their marketing in person and told why she advises this. One of the reasons for Miss Peet's success as a cookery teacher is that she can give good reasons for everything she recommends. She does not present untried theories and abstract principles, but suggests plans which she has studied and worked out and found to be practical and valuable. To successfully economize, Miss Peet says the housewife must not satisfy herself with ordering supplies over the telephone, but must take the time and trouble to visit the grocer and butcher in person.

Miss Peet talked for a while this afternoon on "the staff of life." She said that the science of bread making is an old one known all civilized nations and that bread plays an important and indispensable part in every household. It is the basis of a knowledge of flour and yeast is invaluable to the woman who would make good bread. She gave some helpful and interesting information in regard to the various kinds of flour, telling which is most useful for bread and which for cake and pastry. A chemist from a big mill once said to her, "I wish I knew as much about bread as you do, and that I could tell it as well. While it is true that bread making is the most complicated of all cookery, she holds that it is quite possible, by being intelligently informed and using accurate methods, to always meet with success on baking day. She believes the more a woman knows concerning the chemistry of bread making, the more pleasure it affords, and the more intelligence she uses in applying this knowledge, the more certain she is to always make good bread."

The special session last night attracted a large and enthusiastic crowd, including many men who were deeply impressed by Miss Peet's business like methods and her workable ideas in running the financial end of a house on a strictly business basis.

They also liked the baked ice cream, and enjoyed the beautifully browned loaf Miss Peet triumphantly took from the oven.

Tomorrow Miss Peet will dwell in detail on the subject she has already brought up more than once, that of making food look pretty, and will demonstrate just how to dress up so ordinary a dish as a steak in a perfectly beautiful fashion.

Lemon pie, yum-yum—is also on tomorrow's program. Don't, whatever you do, fail to get a taste.

Fruit Salad.

Dressing.

One tablespoonful crisco, pinch of salt, two tablespoons sugar, two tablespoonsful vinegar, two eggs, ½ pint whipped cream.

Salad.

Twenty-four marshmallows, six oranges, lettuce leaves.

For Salad: Cut fruit and marshmallows into small pieces, then mix and chill. For Dressing: Beat up egg, double boiler, add vinegar, sugar, salt, crisco and cook until thick. Cool and add whipped cream. Mix with fruit and serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Lemon-Meringue Pie.

(For this pie see recipe No. 17 or 18 in Miss Peet's "Lectures" which will be given away each day at the school.)

Three tablespoonsful cornstarch, three egg yolks, one egg white, six tablespoonsful lemon juice, grated lemon rind, one cupful boiling water.

Three cake With Fruit Frosting.

Four tablespoonsful baking powder, one teaspoonful salt, ½ cupful crisco, ½ cupful sugar, one cupful milk, whites of six eggs, one teaspoonful Rose water.

Cream the crisco, add the sugar gradually. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add to the above and mix with the milk and the rose water. Put layers together with the following frosting: three gradually confectioner's sugar, until stiff enough to spread. To this add one cupful chopped raisins, one cupful nut meats, and five eggs cut in small pieces. (This makes extra large cake.)

Wednesday's Markets.

Chicago, June 3.—Yesterday's receipts of cattle and hogs exceeded expectations, being 5,000 and 10,000 respectively, compared with a week ago.

Some cattle, however, sold at steady prices, while most offerings went at 10c decline. Best beefs $9.40 and yearlings $9.20.

Another factor in the decline in prices yesterday carried the hog to the lowest point since May 11.

Trade finished flat, and the Armour and Swift droves cost around $7.45.

Best pigs at $7.25 and $7.50.

The lamb trade was active at steady to strong prices. Shorn Colorado reached $10.65, equaling last week's record price.

Hogs Average Lower.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $7.52, against $7.65 Tuesday and a week ago, $8.15 a year ago, $8.53 two years ago and $7.44 three years ago.

Yearling Cattle at $9.20.

Native beef cattle sold steady to 15c lower. Quality improved, many 1,200 to 1,400-lb. steers selling at $9.20 to $9.40, with 890-lb. yearlings at $9.20 and 1,277-lb. heaves at $9.40. Butcher stock slow to 10c lower and calves steady. Quotations:

Choice to fancy steers... $8.50@9.40

Poor to good steers... 7.50@8.25

Yearlings, fair to fancy... 7.50@9.20

Fat cows and heifers... 5.70@8.90

Fanning cows and heifers... 3.50@5.50

Native pigs and hogs... 5.50@7.50

Poor to fancy veal... 6.50@7.80

Packers Force Hogs Down.

Packers took advantage of the big hog run yesterday and forced the top down to 13½c, an average 11c off to $7.52, standing 30c below May 15, high day of the year. Quality good, but average weight lighter than week ago. Prices are lower than Saturday.

Quotations follow:

Bulk of sales... $7.45@7.60

Heavy butchers and shipping... 7.50@7.60

Light butchers... 7.50@7.70

Light bacon, 145@190 lbs... 7.50@7.72½

Heavy packing, 260@400 lbs... 7.20@7.45

Mixed packing, 200@350 lbs... 7.20@7.50

Rough, heavy packing... 7.00@7.15

Poor to best pigs, 60@135 lbs... 5.75@7.15

Stags, 80 lbs. dockage per head... 6.65@7.75

Sheep Are Scarce.

Bulk of shorn lambs yesterday made $10.25@10.50 and spring largely at $11.75. Hardly enough sheep arrived to establish prices. Quotations for shorn:

Lambs, common to fancy... $8.50@10.65

Lambs, poor to good... 8.50@8.25

Yearlings, poor to fancy... 7.60@9.20

Chicago & Northwestern Railway. The annual inventory of stock on hand is being taken by the store and car departments.

Roundhouse Foreman W. H. Wade spent Tuesday in Chicago on business.

Archie Cunningham and Joe Smith of the roundhouse force were in Chicago Sunday and Monday to see the Sox play Jimmie Wilson, the engine driver, and Dan Murphy showed them some of the sights of the town after the games.

Thomas Stocks of Fond du Lac, former roundhouse foreman here, was in the city the first of the week, renewing old acquaintance.

Storekeeper Fritz Bartsch has been presented with a new typewriter by the purchasing agent.

Howard "Doc" Wade, captain of road's baseball team of the Commercial league, is spending up a like-bunch recruits for the artificial game against the Lewis Knitting nine a week from Saturday. Shorty Lee of the Milwaukee roundhouse will manage the aggregation.

Engineer George Sterritt has been voted a pedestal in the hall of fame for high story tellers. Sterritt and his father, according to the version of the former, carried seven barrels of trout from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. "the other day."

Jack Lee reported for work yesterday, following a layoff of three nights.

Frank Bier of the night switch engine is taking a layoff. He is being relieved by Jack Lewis, who is being placed by Frank Dudley on the 6 p. m. dispatching job.

Machinist Earl Garbutt has returned to work following a short vacation.

Frank Hennessey of Master Mechanic Schultz's office at Chicago, spent Sunday in the city.

Charles McCaffrey of the Chicago freight offices was also here Sunday and Memorial Day.

Jerry Lindley is disposing of a large number of sporting utensils, including a fishing rod and camera. Jerry is also disposing of the purchase of an automobile. From the article he plans selling, the boys say, he's going to get a Foolish Four.

Fireman Parks of the Madison division has displaced Fireman Wozzler on the De Kalb passenger, 306 and 315.

James Cummings of the roundhouse force was a Sox rooter at Chicago Sunday.

Quite a few of the boys are planning to attend the Chicago Speedway races on June 19, if arrangements can be made accordingly. Joe Smith's recent experience with track speed, placed him in A1 in the column of speed fans.

The Russian government is reported to have ordered 12,000 tons of rails from the United States Steel Corporation, supposedly for use on the Chinese Eastern, and is also negotiating with the Pullman company for the purchase of 40,000 freight cars. These cars, if purchased, will be built according to American standards, except as to gauge, couplings and wheels. The gauge will be the board gauge of the Russian railways and the couplings and wheels will be according to Russian standards. This order may be closed this week.

Chicago, Milwaukee and St. P. Ry. Gus Abendroth, head of the car department, went to Plattville this morning to inspect a string of bad orders.

Juel Bergman purchased a new car yesterday. First aid from the garage was one of Juel's initial experiences of automobilism. He got stuck in the sand south of town.

Agent Fred W. Zimmerman this morning received notice relative to the new state law making semi-monthly pay checks compulsory. Starting June 15 railway men will receive their compensation semi-monthly.

WINEGAR WON BY SIMPLY HIS NOSE

Deputy Sheriff Fails to Serve Papers on Well Known Actor Though He Watched Trains at Depot.

Charles J. Winegar, one of the Winnebag brothers, who are the light of Janesville theatre goers, won a race with a Cook county deputy sheriff in Chicago Wednesday "by simply his nose." Incidentally Charles Winegar is the husband of Blanche Ring. The deputy sheriff who lost the race had some papers he wished to serve on Charles, and not knowing his personal name, he had a description written down. It included a crooked nose, one of the prominent features of his face. Now despite the fact he knew just that train Winegar was to leave Chicago on, he failed to find his man and he insists that he would be victim "won by a nose," that is, he putted his crooked nose up straight and evaded the service of the papers in a $1,400 action.

Connie Mack forgot his last place predicament for a few fleeting moments the other day, so he went to the defense of Eddie Collins, his former star, now pastimating with the White Sox. "I see that Clark Griffith says Eddie is shipping," began Mack. "No such thing is true. Eddie is still the king of ball players and ought to be for some time to come. For all-around value to a club I believe he is the prize of the league. It took him a little while to get accustomed to his new surroundings, that's all. Mind you, I am not regretting letting him go, but you have to hand him his due as a wonderful player."

WAR SERVICE HARD

Motor Trucks Must Come Up to the Highest Level of Requirements.

EXPERT TELLS OF NEEDS

Has Been on the Scene and Knows Just What Class of Machine is Imperative—America Has the Ideal Motor Truck, Apparently.

The European war is the greatest and costliest breakdown test for motor trucks ever instituted. In comparison a New York to San Francisco test is a pleasure jaunt, whereas four years ago such a run with a motor truck was considered a world sensation. No wonder, then, that American motor truck builders are closely watching how the machines are operating, what features of construction are making good and which need changing.

At the front is W. F. Bradley, an automobile correspondent for a syndicate of American trade journals. Already Bradley has gained at least as much fame as any of the foreign journalists, not even excepting Irvin S. Cobb, although his work is not so widely known among the nontechnical readers of the great public press. Bradley knows whereof he writes, for he has been driving motor trucks, automobiles and ambulances between Paris and the firing line. He has traveled with the ammunition columns and supply trains. He has watched the heavy guns moved from place to place. His findings, therefore, command attention and respect. Briefly, they are as follows:

Power wagon motors as a rule are too large. What is needed, he says, is a four-cylinder motor with a bore of three and three-quarters or four inches. With this motor he recommends a four-speed gear box, with a low speed gear that will take the loaded truck over almost any stretch of road that may be encountered. Accessibility and interchangeability are especially emphasized. Higher road clearances are necessary.

It is gratifying to Americans that one truck made in this country has all of the specifications demanded by Bradley and the French army officers as those of the ideal motor truck.

Improvised Jack.

Jacks, like almost everything else, occasionally are left behind and are wanted when they are not available. In such an emergency a car can be very satisfactorily raised by running one wheel or two, for that matter, on a stone or piece of timber until it is sufficiently high for the purpose, blocking up the axle with timber or stones, and then removing the stone or block from under the wheel by deflating the tire.

When to Buy a New Valve.

A relief cock with a handle that is vertical when the valve is closed is liable to work open if the plug loosens through wear. The best way to remedy such a trouble is to throw out the offending cock and buy a new one. Another method is to fill the hole in the plug with a piece of brass wire carefully shaped to the contour of the plug, and drill a new hole in such a position that the handle will be pointing downward.

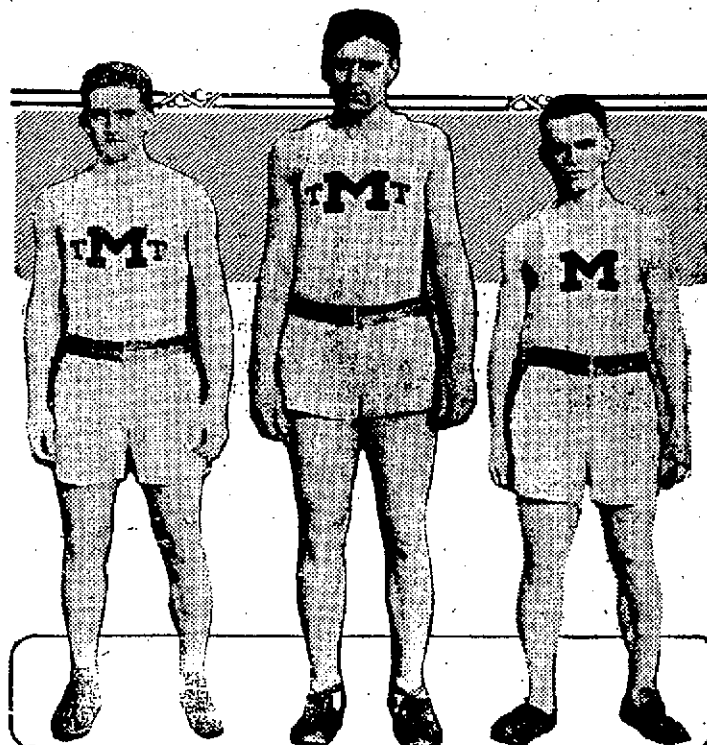

AD WOLGAST WHIPPED BY LEACH CROSS IN NEW YORK ENCOUNTER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, June 3.—Ad Wolgast gave Leach Cross, the veteran Ghetto champ, one of his hardest fights for seven rounds and then witted under the fire of Cross because of the latter's skill and persistence. Cross overcame the rushes of Wolgast and took a decided lead in the last three rounds.

The biggest advantage gained by Wolgast was in the sixth round when he floored Cross with a left hook and almost sent him down for the count. The dentist fighter was superior at long range fighting and at times the former champ was unable to reach him. After the knock-down, Wolgast appeared to go to pieces and was no match for the shifty New Yorker.

MISSOURI ATHLETES SHOW CLASS

Missouri University this year has the best track team in its history and a team that is conceded to be the best in the Missouri valley. It is headed by the star Simpson, who excels in the broad jump, low and high hurdles and 100-yard dash. Floyd, Murphy, Niedorp and Eaton are also consistent point winners for the Missourians.

HEAVY TIGER ASSAULT BEATS WHITE SOX, 4-1

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, June 3.—The Chicago White Sox were battered into defeat by the Detroit Tigers yesterday in the final game, when Cobb, et al, attacked Joe Benz with a vengeance and ended the count 4 to 1. Harry Covalleskie, the Detroit star southpaw, hurled the leading Sox to six hits. The one run resulted when the Chicagoans bunched three of their hits in the seventh inning.

Up until this score, it looked as if the game would be a tie, as both pitchers were having great, but in the eighth the Tigers drove Benz off the slab and put away the game with three tallies. Scott and Russell finished the game. The Sox are idle today, starting on their eastern tour.

PITY THIS MAN, IF BRAVES DON'T WIN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

William N. Jarvis of Cambridge, Mass., is to be pitied, if the Boston Braves fail to win another National league championship. If the Braves fail to win the pennant, Jarvis has agreed to walk from his home town to Philadelphia and back again, accompanied by a big mud turtle, called Lucy Lee.

Lucy must ramble along only two of every five miles, while her master must carry her the other three miles of every five. If the Braves win the pennant, Jarvis will be a millionaire. If the Braves lose, the man with whom Jarvis made his bet, loses $100.

"BETTER late than never," may be all right for some things; but men think it a shame to let time slip along without their friends getting the comfort of the Real Tobacco Chew. Every day they are telling friends to get started right.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.

YOUNG LADIES' SOCIETY HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Whitewater, June 3.—The Young Ladies' Auxiliary of the Congregational church held their annual banquet last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Williams, on Prairie St.

About sixty sat down to a four course dinner which was served amid beautiful decorations of yellow and white. Music was furnished during the dinner hour by an orchestra consisting of Agnes and Gladys Gernes, Margaret Winch, Harry Tilden and Gladys Gustavson. The event was not only their annual banquet, but consisted of a shower for Miss Grace Smith, daughter of H. C. Smith, whose marriage is to take place some time during the summer. She was presented with a beautiful sterling silver vase.

Following the dinner Mrs. Howard sang several selections and Miss Bessie Bronson of the Normal, gave a reading. Miss Gladys Gustavson also sang. The society is in a flourishing condition and doing excellent work. Their new officers for the year are: President, Mrs. Laura Ball; Vice President, Miss Mildred Cox; Secretary and Treasurer, Mrs. E. B. Finch, Mrs. Burgett, Miss Ray

Lea is chairman of the work committee.

The young ladies of the M. E. church have completed the organization of a society to be known as the Social Auxiliary. Sociability among the younger people of the church is the main object of the society, connected with other work. At present they are working for the primary department in the Sunday school. A meeting was held Tuesday evening with Miss Eva Ingalls on High street. The following officers were elected at a previous meeting: President, Mrs. Belle Mills; vice-president, Clara Smith; secretary, Mrs. J. E. Miller; treasurer, Nellie Kiawon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kraft and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bientang are in Milwaukee today, having driven there in the former's auto.

GAZETTE PRINTING CO.

THE BRYCE REPORT.

So much has been said and written, so many assertions made and so many denials published, relative to the charge of citizens of Belgium and northern France by the advancing German army in the early days of the war, that the disclosures made by the Bryce report after an exhaustive investigation, must be taken as the actual happenings.

The German writers have denied in toto the tales of almost inhuman barbarism that were reported and have stated in excuse for destruction of cities and whole communities, shooting down of unarmed townsmen and farmers, that it was all done in self-defense, and as an example to others not to resort to similar tactics. Namely the alleged shooting of German troops by citizens in the future.

Now comes the Bryce report. The "Nation" waited until the whole report had been received and then comments upon it in the following editorial. As it was made public immediately following the Lusitania sinking, this report has particular significance in understanding what sort of a final reply may be expected from Berlin with the war party dominant in German politics. The "Nation" is one of the conservative weekly publications in this country. It is neither pro-German nor pro-Allies. It says what it has to say regardless of fear or favor and hence their resume of the report is worth considering. It says:

"Readers of the report by the committee appointed by the British government to inquire into the outrages alleged to have been committed by German troops in the countries which they invaded, should remember that it is only a summary. The report itself is a pamphlet of sixty pages. This, again, is but an epitome of the enormous mass of evidence taken. A huge separate volume contains all this together with facsimiles of German diaries, etc. The every statement made in the report is carefully given a marginal reference to the evidence in detail. As for the personnel of the committee, it is doubtless enough for Americans to know that James Bryce headed it. His high-mindedness and judicial quality need no sponsors in this country. But with him were associated leaders of the English bar—Sir Frederick Pollock, Sir Edward Clarke, Sir Alfred Hopkinson, together with the vice-chancellor of the University of Sheffield, and that keen and independent public man, Mr. Harold Cox. These are men accustomed to weighing human testimony and documentary evidence, and to sifting out the true from the false. In their present task they have spared neither time nor labor. They have been at work nearly five months. They have taken more than 1,200 depositions. Their desire to be fair, to reject every improbable or unproved story, to make allowance for all extenuating circumstances, is visible on many pages. Yet the conclusion which they reach, without haste or heat, and in a full sense of their personal and public responsibility, is one terribly damaging to the good name of Germany, and particularly of her army.

"It may rashly be charged that the publication of this report in America was skillfully timed so as to deepen the feeling caused by the sinking of the Lusitania. But this is absurd. The report had long been preparing, was received here by mail, and must have been in print weeks ago. If its appearance now seems like a clinching of the charges of barbarous conduct on the part of the Germans, that is not the fault of the men who have made this patient investigation. Indeed, it has been openly asserted by German apologists in this country that the reason the Bryce committee had not reported was that it found no authenticated atrocities to report. An exiled Louvain professor to Chicago had published his story of the outrages, but his credibility was assailed by a German resident of Chicago, who asserted: 'You know as well as I that the British commission has investigated more than a thousand cases, and still could find no evidence of German atrocities in Belgium.' That can never be said again. Hard-headed and fair-minded English lawyers now join in the verdict already reached by Belgian magistrates and French barristers, and agree that the proof is overwhelming that there were in many parts of Belgium deliberate and systematically organized massacres of the civil population; that 'innocent civilians were murdered in large numbers'; that 'looting, house-burning, and the wanton destruction of property were ordered and countenanced by the officers of the German army.'

"It is not necessary to remind those who read the 'Nation' that we have never made a sensation of the tales of atrocities. Our aim has been to be discreetly skeptical about all such matters, so long as absolute proof was lacking. We have borne in mind how easy it is for individual ruffianly soldiers to get out of hand in time of war; how drunken troopers may here and there let brutal passions loose; and how much on our guard we ought to be against accepting unverified stories that reflect directly upon the military authorities. But such a suspension of judgment is no longer possible, in view of the painstaking, minute, restrained, and carefully fortified report to which Lord Bryce has now put his name. It constitutes an indictment of the course of the German army in Belgium and in the north of France which is at once shocking and crushing.

"It is impossible in a short space to give an adequate notion of the heaped-up details of the Bryce report. It is their mass which gives them their tremendous cumulative and probative force. By the whole the impression is irresistibly made that what we have before us is a policy of calculated terrorism. This was carried out, the report affirms, scientifically and deliberately, not merely with the sanction, but under the direction of higher military authorities. Names are given of officers involved. One of these, a Saxon officer, wrote in his diary, concerning the operations between Dinant and Rethel: 'Apparently 200 men were shot. There must have been some innocent men amongst them. In future, we shall have to hold an inquiry as to their guilt, instead of shooting them.' Moreover, further proof that the atrocities were insurance of a fixed plan is furnished by the significant fact that the killing * * * began at a certain fixed date and stopped (with some few exceptions) at another fixed date. Some of the officers who carried out the work did it reluctantly, and said they were obeying orders from their chiefs. No wonder that the Bryce committee, after recording what the evidence establishes, speak of their hope that what they have set forth will 'touch and rouse the conscience of mankind,' and finally lead the nations to consider 'what means can be provided and sanctions devised to prevent the recurrence of such horrors.'

The actions of various German societies throughout the country in expressing strong desires for peace, a love for the 'fatherland,' but endorsement of President Wilson and his attitude towards Germany, comes most pleasingly to the public attention and will do more to alleviate the anti-Germans feeling that has arisen in the past few weeks than any reply from Berlin could possibly accomplish.

There are so few distinctions to which men may aspire that being the father of a ten-pound boy is considered one.

Eph Wiley says, that while he wishes to be gallant in his attitude toward the other sex, he never goes so far as to wish he had been born a woman.

In a good many instances the man who wants to do something for the poor is actuated by the fact that the poor cast more votes than the rich.

The rule is that the men earn the money and the women pick the four-leafed clovers.

The best indication as to whether a man honors womanhood is the manner in which he treats his wife.

Buck Kilby says his observation of those who embrace it leads him to conclude that religion is much less painful than it was when he was a boy.

LEIGHTON'S SLANDER CASE IS DISMISSED

NO GROUNDS FOR SUIT BROUGHT BY FULTON MINISTER, JUDGE MAXFIELD DECIDES.

MUST ALSO PAY COSTS

Court Holds It Unfair That State Should Bear Expense of Suit Brought "to Gratify Spite and Malice."

In a decision filed today, Judge H. L. Maxfield ruled in the case of the state vs. Rev. E. C. Cartwright, a slander action, out of the municipal court, by dismissing the complaint made by Rev. William A. Leighton of Edgerton, and discharged the defendant, Rev. Cartwright, from the custody of the court. Not only did the court decide that Leighton brought the criminal slander action against Cartwright in the Janesville municipal court for spiteful and malicious purposes, but that the costs of the case should be assessed against Leighton.

The costs amounted to $179.03 in all, as the defense spared no expense in bringing witnesses to the stand, and the alleged slanderous statements made by Cartwright about Leighton were true and an amount of deposition testimony was taken in distant cities. In the decision

it was held that no offense had been proved and that the statements were given in good faith, in the protection of a young woman, whom the evidence brought out is Miss Madeline Willis of Edgerton. "The words were not false," the ruling said.

Because of the conceded fact by the state that Leighton had brought a civil slander action against Cartwright, the court held that the purpose of the prosecution was to gratify the spite of Leighton, and further his private ends.

Under the state's appeal can be taken on the assessment of the costs by Leighton's private attorneys and it is understood that such a step will be taken if the circuit court for Rock county. The state has no power to compel the payment of the costs, but District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie is considering an appeal, claiming error in the state's decision.

Judge Maxfield's decision follows: "This is a prosecution commenced on the part of the plaintiff, William A. Leighton, under Section 49, which among other things provides: 'Every person who in the presence and hearing of another or others slanders the person slandered, whether by spoken or not, shall maliciously speak or concern any person, any like or defamatory words or injure or impair the reputation of such person for virtue or chastity, or which shall expose him to hatred, contempt or ridicule, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor for which he shall be punished as hereinafter provided in Sub-section 1.'

"Evidence herein mentioned shall be deemed malicious if no justification herefor be shown and shall be justified when the language charged as slanderous is true and supported by evidence to at least two other persons or than such person who understood the language charged as slanderous or by admission of the defendant.

"At common law a criminal prosecution for slander was unknown until the year 1792, when the state of New York, for the first time, made it a crime to slander. It is incumbent upon this court to strictly construe said statute.

"Evidence of this case convinces the court that the alleged slanderous statements used by the defendant, E. C. Cartwright, were spoken in the presence of Miss Walker in the presence of Miss Megaw, on the 5th day of April, 1915, at Edgerton, Wisconsin. The evidence in the case demonstrates that the defendant acted maliciously and with intent to injure the plaintiff, and that the plaintiff was injured by the defendant's slanderous statements. The court therefore finds that the defendant is liable for the costs of this case.

"It is conceded by Mr. Leighton's attorney that he had commenced, prior to the commencement of this case, a slander action, practically involving the same words as spoken here against the defendant, Cartwright, and that Mr. Leighton was recovering large sums of money for damages. The court therefore finds that the defendant acted maliciously and with intent to injure the plaintiff, and that the plaintiff was injured by the defendant's slanderous statements. The court therefore finds that the defendant is liable for the costs of this case.

the issuing of a warrant in all fairness. But when an examination of the evidence taken at the trial discloses a condition such as found in this case, this court for fairness and justice to the innocent citizen must, in a measure, set aside the usual law is not used to satisfy individual spite and malice for the private advantage."

COMMERCIAL LEAGUE TO OPEN SATURDAY

Railroad Team Will Meet Lewis Knitting Company, With Second Game In Doubt—Managers Met Wednesday.

Saturday the Commercial League for the present season will open its scheduled game with the Lewis Knitting Company. As it is rather doubtful the Rock River Cotton company will or cannot play, an attempt is being made today to bring the two telephone companies together with one team representing the two concerns, making the fifth team in the league. If the Commercial League does not organize a team, and the telephone companies fail to get a team onto the field by Saturday, the Parker Pen and Y. M. C. A. teams will meet in the second encounter of the day. Otherwise the telephone men, if organized, will meet the Penmakers, and the association will lay off until the 12th.

A meeting last evening of the managers, the schedule was about decided upon. Victor Enright and James Smith have been selected to act as the officials during the summer. Enright to officiate on Saturday.

A committee was appointed to look after the grounds and to maintain order on the grounds during the playing of all games. Frank Fraunfelder, chairman of the committee, was appointed, and was given permanent position. This committee will also act as an arbitration committee to settle all disputes after games have been played.

SIDE TALKS

THE HOW VERSUS THE WHAT.

ONCE heard a vaudeville artist sing a song in which she mentioned various things which other people did in a vulgar way but which she dignified by her manner of doing them "like a lady." One verse, for instance, explained how other people sometimes chewed gum in an of fensive manner, "but I chew mine like a lady."

Of course it was amusing, but it had a germ of truth in it, too. The subjective in life is just as important as the objective. The way in which you do things and the way you feel about them matters as well as the things you do.

Dancing Can Be An Exercise or An Insult.

Take the new dances, for instance. Few things are more changed by what you put into them than dancing. People who object so violently to all kinds of dancing forget that like music, dancing has infinite possibilities of interpretation. The much discussed new dances take their color from the dancers. I have seen the fox-trot, the one-step or the canter danced in a frank and simple way as a form of graceful exercise. And I have also seen them danced in a manner which made one wonder what the girls' mothers were about, to permit such things to go on.

Again a book or a play is not the same thing to any two people who read or see it.

I read recently two criticisms of a certain farce. One critic says it is very broad and rather coarse; the other that it is a thoroughly whole some farce with nothing objectionable in it. Now both critics saw the play, but each must have put something into it out of his own mind and experience.

The Girl Whom Strange Men Spoke To.

To go a step further, it seems to me that the tendency of your mind not only colors what you do and what you think, but it influences your relation to events and people. I knew a girl who is always being spoken to on the street by strange men. She has a modest enough bearing and is not a striking looking girl, but she is one who thinks a good deal about such things. I believe that this tendency of mind in some way attracts such experiences to her.

Of course outer conditions do react to change and form the inner mind, and so what one does it and how one feels about it also matter.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question—Do you think a man has a moral right to make his wife promise not to marry again, or vice versa?—L. C. B.

Answer—No, I do not. Nor do I see how anyone could take satisfaction in having such a promise made to him. One would find happiness in having a wife who loved one so much that she would not want to marry again, but surely not in holding her in unwilling and resentful prisoner to the letter of a compact whose spirit she no longer feels. Furthermore, I don't believe a woman from whom such a promise has been extracted (especially if the extraction was done on a deathbed) is under moral obligation to keep it if it comes knocking at the door of her heart.

Address your questions to Food Editor and you will receive a reply by mail or through this column. Queries unless signed by the full name, and address of the writer will not be given answer in this column. In giving reply only will be given.

Purity of Butter.

Q. I buy the fresh, sweet, unsalted butter from the farmers in our market. Would you kindly tell me how to test the butter to know when it is in it? In the winter months, not now, the butter is very white, and when it is made hot it froths very much and the taste in the food is just like lard.

A. It is very unlikely that farmers' butter contains lard. The white color you mention is no sign whatever of impurity; it is a condition common to any high grade butter, particularly during the winter months. The foaming you mention is a further indication of purity. All pure butter froths or foams when heated in a dry sauce pan, spider or spoon.

Sulphured Molasses.

Q. Have always used best New Orleans molasses bought of first class grocer. Yesterday it came labelled: "This molasses contains sulphur and is not fit for human consumption." I appealed to the grocer—he said he had always been bleached that way but now they were obliged to label it. Is it right to bleach it in that way?

A. There is no good reason for the introduction of sulphurous acid or sulphur dioxide into molasses. It is not, however, used as a bleaching agent due to the peculiar process of manufacture. Your grocer can secure unadulterated molasses if you insist upon it. If he does not, then you will send us a self-addressed envelope, we will give you the names of several makers who will be glad to furnish the same.

Benzolic Acid in Cider.

Q. I am very much interested in your food department of Thursday's paper. Will you kindly inform me whether it is necessary to use benzoic acid in cider, in order to keep it from fermenting, if the fruit used is good?

A. It is absolutely unnecessary to use benzoic acid or any other food drug to keep cider or any other fruit juice from souring. If the cider is put in bottles and thoroughly sterilized, it will keep without any drugging whatever.

Keeps the Heat in the Oven and Out of the Kitchen

"Fireless" and Range Combined.

The secret is in the heat just like a fireless cook stove. A turn of the damper does it—changing your range into the best and easiest used fireless ever invented. This "fireless" oven is the big, new feature of the NEW FIRELESS RANGE, the finest range you can put in your kitchen. Has a cabinet top with a spacious work surface and plenty of room behind the burners for keeping food hot.

3 Kinds of Cooking.

This insulated oven cooks three ways. You can adjust the flame for the quick kind of quick baking, or the low steady kind you need for baking bread and roasting meats. Set the oven and turn out the flame and it keeps an even heat for six or seven hours—this is your fireless oven. The insulation keeps the heat in the oven and out of the kitchen—a blessing.

Fries Doughnuts and Bakes Ice Cream Especially for Men at Big Meeting Last Evening.

(By Mrs. Abbie Helms.)

"A balanced ration produces a balanced mind" is an axiom taken from the quaint little homily with which Miss Peet preceded her lesson on Wednesday evening. Also that a vicious diet would develop a vicious child into a vicious individual, hence the need of care and thought in the preparation of foods. She claimed that the young women of the present day were better cooks than their mothers because they had better appliances to work with, better materials and were more exact in their methods and also because they learned just the reason "why" of their failures.

The first lesson was on roasting in a fireless cooker, and in this connection she urged the use of a thermometer to test the heat of the meats. Directions were given for the preparation and dressing of a chicken and the roasting of a piece of meat in the cooker. Then a lesson was given on biscuits, dumplings and shortcakes, with hints on the consistency of the dough and the management of each.

"Biscuits were passed on trays which were 'morsels of deliciousness.'"

One hint of interest to the amateur housewife was that "biscuits and things of that nature were better to stand for ten or fifteen minutes after being made and then put into very hot oven. The use of an ice pick in handling dumplings was a novel idea recommended by her. A spring salad was served around for inspection and the afternoon closed with a demonstration of cake making. A delicious California orange cake was the kind prepared. Lesson took up the subject of proper flour, sugar and other ingredients which were needed in cake making, and also the temperature of the oven and other matters of importance. The recipe for an angel food cake is as follows: One cup of flour sifted three times, one cup of fine sugar, one level teaspoon of cream of tartar, and one cupful of very stiff egg beaten till they are very stiff and folded in the last thing, also any preferred flavoring. She also gave hints in cake making to prevent a "sad looking" cake.

At the evening meeting the auditorium was crowded and great interest was shown in the demonstration. The month of June belongs to the bride, and it is quite fitting at this time to give a little talk on so pleasantly done as the evening "Partnership in the Home." She said it would be a good thing if every boy had to take at least a partial course in domestic science, for he could do the buying for the family intelligently if obliged to do so. She said that scientists have proved by statistics that the last generation lived on an average fifteen years longer than the previous one, and that the present generation was living fifteen years longer than the last one. And this, she said, was owing to the fact of more scientific method in better balanced rations in foodstuffs. She began her menu for the evening by stirring up a "batch" of doughnuts, which she affirmed she had just as leave fry for breakfast, for as she make griddle cakes. Trays piled high with tiny round doughnuts were passed through the audience that evening, and especially the gentlemen, might sample a sheet of cake previously baked and cooled, and then deftly covered all over with a thick layer of meringue made of whites of eggs beaten stiff with sugar. This is stood upon a baking sheet and put into a hot oven for a few minutes until nicely browned. In serving it the whole loaf is sliced down through the meringue, ice cream and cake making a dainty looking and delicious dessert. While the ice cream was "baking," Miss Peet gave a little talk on the food values of different cuts of meat and the degrees of heat necessary to cook various articles of food in the fireless cooker. The chicken placed in the Caloric during the afternoon lesson was taken out and its tenderness and food value shown, as not a particle of nutriment was wasted in the process.

The evening program closed with the disposal of the beautiful grill stove donated by the Electric company, the lucky number of which was held by Miss Pearl West. Several dozen doughnuts cooked by Miss Peet were given away by her, and the lucky number in this case was held by Miss Ida Morse.

On Thursday a large aluminum kettle with cover, donated by the Sheldon Hardware company, is to be given away on Friday a handsome Caloric Cooker donated by the Electric company. Those ladies who should be given to some lucky individual on Saturday a set of aluminum kitchen knives and a carving knife and fork both donated by the Fleischman company, will be received by some fortunate lady present at the exercises. On Saturday both forenoon and afternoon a lesson will be given on frying. The furniture on the stage will be moved back and their places filled with chairs. The small gas stove will be moved into the center and Miss Peet in her lesson will be in intimate personal touch with her audience. Those ladies who should be given to come on Saturday forenoon as the afternoon class is likely to be so crowded that much of the value of the lesson will be lost on the individual. So come Saturday forenoon if you possibly can, and don't forget that this is an opportunity you can't afford to miss.

ASSEMBLYMAN FAVORS ILLIGIMATE CHILD TAKING SIRE'S NAME

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., June 3.—The senate public welfare committee was urged by Assemblyman McGowan yesterday to favor his bill, which recently passed the house, providing that a child born out of wedlock shall take the father's name and be deemed the property. Under the present law such children take the mother's name and may not share in the father's property. Mr. McGowan said that such sociological authorities as Mrs. Julia Kurtz of Milwaukee were strongly supporting such a measure.

WORLD'S CHAMPION BRONCHO RIDER WILL NEVER BE ABLE TO RIDE AGAIN

Dorothy Morrell.

Dorothy Morrell, nineteen-year-old cowgirl, who won the world's championship title for broncho riding during last year's "Frontier Days," at Cheyenne, Wyo., is lying seriously injured in a San Francisco hospital, the result of having been trampled upon by one of the outlaw horses at a wild west show at the Panama-Pacific exposition. The doctors say she will never be able to ride again. In private life Miss Morrell is the wife of "Skeeter Bill," the Wyoming cowboy-poet.

MAGNOLIA

Magnolia, June 2.—Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Seizer and family called on Janesville relatives Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Woodstock and family, E. B. McCoy, and the Misses Ada McCoy and Dorothy Edwards of Evansville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Harper and son.

Miss Martin's pupils gave a very nice memorial program at the A. C. church Monday morning. It is to be regretted that the attendance was not larger. The farmers are very busy planting corn these days.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Acheson and daughter Ruth and friend, motored to Lake Koshong and Port Atkinson, Sunday afternoon.

The community was shocked Monday afternoon when the word was passed that Mrs. Wilson Brown had passed away just as she was about to get into the buggy to go to Evansville with her son Will, after a few weeks' stay at the home of Vic Eager. Mrs. Brown had been a sufferer for several years and death came to relieve her of her sufferings. She leaves three sons, Will and Oliver of Evansville, and Nito of Canada, and one daughter, Adria, care of Caledonia, Ill., and seven grandchildren, besides other relatives and friends.

Burial will be at the East cemetery Wednesday at 2 o'clock at the church at two o'clock this afternoon. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of all in their time of sorrow. Rev. Coon was the officiating clergyman.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Harper and son attended the funeral of Mrs. Van Skike of Brodhead, Wednesday.

CLINTON

Clinton, June 2.—C. H. Hunt and wife of Beloit were here Sunday making the trip by auto with some Beloit friends.

N. E. Buckley came down from Madison for Memorial Day.

Memorial Day in Clinton passed off much as it has every previous year.

Pena Hastings, wife and son of Chicago, were here Saturday, Sunday and Monday visiting his mother and brother.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Scott of Poynette are here to attend the commencement exercises, as their daughter, Helen, is a member of the senior class.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Seaver of Darlen were here for the class play last night.

Joe Steiner of Beloit, joined his wife and child here Monday.

Miss Lizzie Thorson of Janesville, was here Monday.

Mrs. C. E. Jones and son, of Beloit, were here Monday.

Mrs. J. R. Sayers of Chicago is visiting her sister, Mrs. R. E. Green for a few days.

Oscar Wingate of Rockford, was here Monday to visit his old friends.

The graduating exercises of our schools will be held at the city hall Friday evening. The class play was given last evening before a large audience.

GOLD DUST

—it actually works at hundreds of tasks daily

"Let the Gold Dust Twins do your work" is much more than a popular phrase. It is based on truth, an actuality, for Gold Dust really works.

The millions of women who use it for dishwashing and scrubbing know this. But Gold Dust should be used for cleaning and brightening everything. It is the only washing and cleaning powder needed in any home.

The small quantity required is quickly taken up by hot or cold, hard or soft water—forming a perfect cleaning solution. The valuable antiseptic cleaning agent it contains helps to make things actually clean, as well as bright and new-looking.

A MEATLESS DIET

"A savor that may strike the dull eat nostril."

Prepared for The Gazette by Nellie Maxwell, Department of Farmers' Institutes, of the University of Wisconsin.

Often for dietary reasons as well as expense the meat allowance must be cut down.

Substitutes which lend variety, and produce the same energy producing qualities are the following: whole wheat flour, dried beans, peas, lentils, peanuts, walnuts, pecans, peanut butter, oatmeal, cracked wheat, whole wheat, cheese, eggs, butter, cream, olive oil, milk, macaroni, and rice. These are a few of the many foods which, simply or in combination, make a wholesome diet.

Dried fruits and nuts are valuable foods as well as the fresh fruits which are indispensable in a well-balanced diet.

Whole wheat, if soaked overnight, then cooked long and slowly, makes with thin cream or rich milk, a meal of itself. Beans, peas, and lentils should be soaked then cooked in water and softened by a pinch of soda.

Rice Croquettes with Cheese Sauce.—Cook a cupful of rice in two and a half cups of milk, with a teaspoon of salt until tender adding more milk if needed. Season with two tablespoonfuls of butter, a dash of paprika and mix with two beaten egg yolks then chill. When cold and stiffened mould into cones, balls or cylinder forms, dip in crumbs, then in egg white and in crumbs again. Brown in hot fat and serve with sauce.

Cheese Sauce.—Take three tablespoonfuls of butter, add four of flour when the butter is bubbling hot, mix well, add a half teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of paprika, one and a half cups of milk and a cupful of chopped cheese. Cook the sauce well before adding the cheese and serve as soon as it is melted.

Cheese Savory.—Prepare some thin slices of toast. Cover each slice with half cupful of sauce. Cook the toast one-half inch pieces of good flavored cheese. Lay in a baking pan and place an egg carefully in the center of each piece. Bake in a hot oven until the eggs are set. Season with salt and a dash of paprika on each.

Paranip Croquettes.—These are especially well liked by those who are fond of parsnips. Cut the parsnips in halves and cook until tender, remove the skins and any tough portion, and mash until perfectly smooth, and butter, pepper, salt and set aside to cool. When cool enough to handle mould into balls, dip in crumbs and egg then crumbs again and fry a deep brown. Use as a garnish for a roast.

The quality of a loaf of bread—its flavor and nutriment—depend on the materials that go into it.

FREEDOM of ACTION

The active American woman appreciates freedom in her corsets—but she must not let this desire lead her to extremes. You should not wear unboned topless styles. Your figure needs the healthful support of a properly designed corset, and this support is hardly possible without the use of boning.

Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets

are scientifically designed to support the figure in healthful lines of fashion.

With the return to a shaped figure this season these models will be particularly appreciated by women who have worn the lightly boned styles of the past year, because the thin Rust-Proof boning in a Warner's is so flexible and comfortable.

This rust-proof boning gives the necessary support, and the two thin strips in a single covering work together to mold the figure without discomfort. This boning will not set and will not break.

Your corset selection this year needs the most thorough consideration and we are in position to give you definite advice on your selection. May we assist you?

CHAPTER I.

At Chaudiere's.

It was at Chaudiere's that Griswold had eaten his first breakfast in the Crescent city, and it was at Chaudiere's again that he was sharing a farewell supper with Bainbridge of the Louisiana. Six weeks lay between that and this; forty-odd days of discouragement and failure superadded upon other similar days and weeks and months.

Without meaning to, Bainbridge had been strewing the path with fresh thorns for the defeated one. He had just been billeted to write up the banana trade for his paper. Boyishly jubilant over the assignment, he had dragged the New Yorker around to Chaudiere's to a small parting feast. Not that it had required much persuasion. Griswold had fasted for 24 hours, and if Bainbridge were not a friend in a purist's definition of the term, he was at least a friendly acquaintance.

The burden of the table talk fell upon Bainbridge, and it occurred to the host that his guest was less than usually responsive, a fault not to be lightly condoned under the joyous circumstances. Wherefore he protested. "What's the matter with you to-night, Kenneth, old man? You're more than commonly grumpy, it seems to me; and that's needless."

Griswold looked up with a smile that was almost ill-natured, and quoted cynically: "Unto everyone that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance; but from him that hath not, shall be taken away even that which he hath."

Bainbridge's laugh was tolerant enough to take the edge from his retort. "That's a pretty thing to fling at a man who never knifed you or pistolled you or tried to poison you! An innocent bystander might say you envied me."

"I do," rejoined Griswold gravely. "I envy any man who can earn enough money to pay for three meals a day and a place to sleep in."

"Oh, cat's foot!—anybody can do that," asserted Bainbridge, with the air of one to whom the struggle for existence has been a mere athlete's practice run. "I know; that is your theory. But the facts disprove it. I can't, for one."

Griswold was a fair man, with reddish hair and beard and the quick and sensitive skin of the type. A red flush of anger crept up under the closely cropped beard, and his eyes were bright.

Bainbridge scoffed openly; but he was good-natured enough to make amends when he saw that Griswold was moved.

"I take it all back," he said. "I suppose the book-chicken has come home again to roost, and a returned manuscript accounts for anything. But, seriously, Kenneth, you ought to get down to bed-rock facts. Nobody but a crazy phenomenon can find a publisher for his first book, nowadays, unless he has had some sort of an introduction in the magazines or the newspapers. You haven't had that; so far as I know, you haven't tried it."

"Oh, yes, I have—tried and failed. It isn't in me to do the salable thing, and there isn't a magazine editor in the country who doesn't know it by this time. I tell you, Bainbridge, the conditions are all wrong when a man with a vital message to his kind can't get to deliver it to the people who want to hear it."

Bainbridge ordered the small coffee and found his cigar case. "That is about what I suspected," he commented impatiently. "You couldn't keep your peculiar views muzzled even when you were writing a bit of a pot boiler on sugar planting. You drop your foot socialistic and write a book that a reputable publisher can bring out without committing commercial suicide, and you'll stand some show."

"Call it what you please; names don't change facts. Listen"—Griswold leaned upon the table; his eyes grew hard and the blue in them became metallic—"For more than a month I have tramped the streets of this cursed city begging—yes, that is the word—begging for work of any kind that would suffice to keep body and soul together, and for more than half of that time I have lived on one meal a day. That is what we have come to; we of the submerged majority. And that isn't all. The vague worker himself, when he is fortunate enough to find a chance to earn his crust, is but a serf; a chattel among the other possessions of some fellow man who has acquired him in the plutocratic redistribution of the earth and the fulness thereof."

Bainbridge glanced at his watch. "I must be going," he said. "The Adelantado drops down the river at eleven. How are you fixed for the present, and what are you going to do for the future?"

Griswold's smile was not pleasant to look at. "I am 'fixed' to run twenty-four hours longer, thanks to your hospitality. For that length of time I presume I shall continue to conform to what we have been taught to believe is the immutable order of things. After that—"

"You Couldn't Keep Your Peculiar Views Muzzled."

He paused, and Bainbridge put the question. "Well, after that; what then?"

"Then, if the chance to earn is still denied me, and I am sufficiently hungry, I shall stretch forth my hand and take what I need."

Bainbridge fished in his pocket and took out a ten-dollar banknote. "Do that first," he said, offering Griswold the money.

The proletarian smiled and shook his head.

The fruit steamer Adelantado, outward bound, was shuddering to the first slow revolutions of her propeller when Bainbridge turned the key in the door of the stuffy little stateroom to which he had been directed, and went on deck.

"Why, hello, Broffin! How are you, old man? Where the dickens did you drop from?"

It was the inevitable steamer acquaintance who is always at hand to prove the trite narrowness of the world, and Bainbridge kicked a chair into comradely place for him.

Broffin, heavy browed and clean shaven save for a thick mustache that hid the hard-bitted mouth, replaced the chair to suit himself and sat down. In appearance he was a cross between a steamboat captain on a vacation and an up-river plantation overseer recovering from his annual pleasure trip to the city. But his reply to Bainbridge's query proved that he was neither.

"I didn't drop; I walked. More than that, I kept step with you all the way from Chaudiere's to the levee. You'd be dead easy game for an amateur."

"You'll get yourself disliked, the first thing you know," said Bainbridge, laughing. "Can't you ever forget that you are in the man-hunting business? Where are you headed for, Broffin?"

The man who might have passed for a steamboat captain or a plantation overseer, and was neither, chuckled dryly. "You don't expect me to give it away to you, and you a newspaper man, do you? But I will—seeing you can't get it on the wires. I'm going down to Guatemala after Mortsen."

"The Crescent bank defaulter? By Jove! you've found him at last, have you?"

The detective nodded. "I've been two years, off and on, trying to locate Mortsen; and now that I've found him, he is where he can't be extradited. All the same, I'll bet you five to one he goes back with me in the next steamer—what?"

CHAPTER II.

The Right of Might.

Two days after the supper at Chaudiere's the unimpetuous routine of the business quarter of New Orleans was rudely disturbed by the shock of a genuine sensation.

To shatter at a single blow the most venerable of the routine precedents, the sensational thing chose for its colliding point with orderly system one of the oldest and most conservative of the city's banks—the Bayou State Security. At ten o'clock, following the precise habit of half a lifetime, Mr. Andrew Galbraith, president of the Bayou State, entered his private room in the rear of the main banking apartment, opened his desk, and addressed himself to the business of the day. At half-past the hour the president was left alone to read his correspondence.

Being a man whose mental processes were all serious, and whose hobby was method, Mr. Galbraith had established a custom of giving himself a quiet half-hour of inviolable seclusion in which to read and consider his mail. During this sacred interval the stenographer, standing guard in the outer office, had instructions to deny his chief to callers of any and every degree. Wherefore, when, at 20 minutes to 11, the door of the private office opened to admit a stranger, the president was justly annoyed.

"Well, sir; what now?" he demanded, impatiently, taking the intruder's measure in a swift glance shot from beneath his bushy white eyebrows.

The unannounced visitor was a young man of rather prepossessing appearance, a trifle tall for his breadth of shoulder, fair, with blue eyes and a curling, reddish beard and mustache, the former trimmed to a point. So much the president was able to note in the appraising glance—and to remember afterward.

The caller made no reply to the curt question. He had turned and was closing the door. There was a quiet insistence in the act that was like the flick of a whip to Mr. Galbraith's irritation.

"If you have business with me, you'll have to excuse me for a few minutes," he protested, still more impatiently. "Be good enough to take a seat in the anteroom until I ring. MacFarland should have told you."

The young man drew up a chair and sat down, ignoring the request as if he had failed to hear it. Ordinarily Mr. Andrew Galbraith's temper was equable enough; the age-cooled temper of a methodical gentleman whose long upper lip was in itself an advertisement of self-control. But such a deliberate infraction of his rules, coupled with the stony impudence of the visitor, made him spring up angrily to ring for the watchman.

The intruder was too quick for him. When his hand sought the bell push he found himself looking into the muzzle of a revolver, and so was fain to fall back into his chair, gasping. "Ah-h-h!" he stammered. And when the words could be managed: "So that's it, is it?—you're a robber!"

"No," said the invader of the presidential privacy calmly, speaking for the first time since his incoming. "I am not a robber, save in your own very limited definition of the word. I am merely a poor man, Mr. Galbraith—one of the uncounted thousands—and I want money. If you call for help, I shall shoot you. It is merely a question of money, and if you are amenable to reason—"

"If I'm—but I'm not amenable to your reasons!" blustered the president, recovering a little from the first shock of terrified astonishment. "I refuse to listen to them. I'll not have anything to do with you. Go away!"

The young man's smile showed his teeth, but it also proved that he was not wholly devoid of the sense of humor. "Keep your temper, Mr. Galbraith," he advised coolly. "The moment is mine, and I say you shall listen first and obey afterward. Otherwise you die. Which is it to be? Choose quickly—time is precious."

The president yielded the first point, that of the receptive ear; but grudgingly and as one under strict compulsion.

"Well, then; out with it. What have you to say for yourself?"

"This: You are rich; you represent the existing order of things. I am poor, and I stand for my necessity, which is higher than any man-made law or custom. You have more money than you can possibly use in any legitimate personal channels; I have not the price of the next meal, already twenty-four hours overdue. I came here this morning with my life in my hand to invite you to share with me a portion of that which is yours chiefly by the right of possession. If you do it, well and good; if not, there will be a new president of the Bayou State Security. Do I make myself sufficiently explicit?"

Andrew Galbraith glanced furtively at the paper-weight clock on his desk. It was nearly eleven, and MacFarland would surely come in on the stroke of the hour. If he could only fend off the catastrophe for a few minutes, until help should come. He searched in his pockets and drew forth a handful of coins.

The invader of privacies glanced at the clock in his turn and shook his head.

"You are merely trying to gain time, and you know it, Mr. Galbraith. My stake in this game is much more than a handful of charity silver; and I don't do you the injustice to believe that you hold your life so cheaply; you who have so much money and, at best, so few years to live."

The president put the little heap of coins on the desk, but he did not abandon the struggle for delay.

"What's your price, then?" he demanded, as one who may possibly consider a compromise.

"One hundred thousand dollars—in cash."

"But man! ye're clean daft! Do ye think I have—"

In the midst of his vehement protests the stranger sprang out of his chair, stepped back a pace and raised his weapon.

"Mr. Galbraith, you are juggling with your life! Write a check while there is yet time!"

The hammer of the leveled pistol clicked. Andrew Galbraith shut his eyes and made a blind grasp for pen and checkbook. His hands were shaking as with a palsy, but the fear of death steadied them suddenly when he came to write.

"Indorse it!" was the next command. The voices had ceased beyond the partition, and the dead silence was relieved only by the labored strokes of the president's pen and the tap-tap of the typewriter in the adjacent anteroom.

The check was written and indorsed, and under the menace of the revolver Andrew Galbraith was trying to give it to the robber. But the robber would not take it.

TWO-CYCLE ENGINE

Manufacturers Believe They Have Devised an Improvement of Worth.

HAS SOME NOVEL FEATURES

Designed So That It Operates Efficiently With a Small or a Heavy Charge, Making the Engine Most Suitable for Driving an Automobile.

In an attempt to take advantage of the theoretical superiority of the two-cycle gas engine over the four-cycle engine, one of the largest automobile manufacturers in the country has taken out patents for improvements that apparently overcome the disadvantages heretofore connected with the use of two-cycle engines on automobiles. A four-cycle engine makes four strokes of the piston or two revolutions of the flywheel for each explosion, while the two-cycle engine makes two strokes of the piston or one revolution of the flywheel. In a four-cycle engine, the return stroke of the piston, after it has been forced out by the explosion of the gas, empties or "scavenges" the cylinder of the burned gases, which are forced out through the exhaust port. As the piston goes out again it draws in a fresh supply of gas. On the next inward stroke it compresses the gas, and as it reaches the end of the stroke the gas is ignited and the piston is forced out by the explosion of the gas. The principal disadvantage in this type of engine is in the valves and in the cam shafts, and other apparatus, required for opening and closing them at just the right times. The two-cycle engine is valveless, the ports being opened and closed by the piston. In this type of engine the gas first enters the crank case, being drawn in by the piston as it moves toward the opposite end of the cylinder. This movement of the piston also compresses the gas already in the cylinder and at the end of the stroke the gas is ignited. Near the end of the return stroke the piston uncovers the exhaust port as well as the entry port at the end of a by-pass connecting with the crank case. The gas in the crank case, which has been compressed by the return stroke of the piston, then rushes into the cylinder, filling it with a fresh charge and scavenging it of the burned gases. A baffle plate on the piston prevents the fresh charge from streaming across to the exhaust port and diverts it toward the end of the cylinder, where the spark plug is located. In spite of this there is sure to be some mixing of the fresh charge with the burned gases. The objection to the two-cycle engine as heretofore made, for driving an automobile, is that it requires a heavy charge to work efficiently, and cannot be successfully throttled down in the same fashion as a four-cycle engine.

The purpose of the new invention is to equip the piston so that it can be used efficiently with small as well as heavy charges. The special feature is a pocket, cast on the piston, which receives a small portion of the fresh charge and carries it direct to the spark plug. In addition to this there is the usual space and baffle for receiving and controlling a heavy charge, so that rapid operation with the throttle wide open is not interfered with in any way. What the cup does is to receive a small portion of the fresh charge and prevent it from mixing with the burned gases during the brief interval required for bringing it in contact with the spark plug. —Popular Mechanics.

Depends on Driver.

The life of a car is entirely in the hands of its driver. To prolong the life of the car is or should be the object of every driver, and to do this few things are so important as the proper manipulation of the clutch. A clutch should engage gradually; that is, it should not take up with a jerk, but should impart the motion of the motor to the car gradually, so that there are no undue strains upon the driving mechanism.

Remove Rusted Casing.

Considerable hard work can be accomplished on the road if the tires are treated occasionally with a little shellac and graphite. Aluminum paint is also good to prevent the head of the tire from rusting on the rim. It is a difficult matter to remove the casing from a rim when it has become rusted.

Running Without a Spark.

When carbon accumulates in the cylinders the engine may run from incandescent particles causing ignition after the spark has been turned off. The ignition thus produced is not timed, of course, and dangerous "kick-backs" may occur.

Youthful Longings.

Small Stella had always worn high shoes, but she had long desired a pair of slippers, like those her older sister wore. "Mamma," she queried one day, "when my shoes are worn out, can't I have a pair of low-backed shoes like sister's?"

CITY, SWEET AUBURN FOR MANY ITALIANS

Janeville's Colony Contest to Remain Here Following Manifestos to Return to War.

While manifestos calling all men eligible for military duty to the colors have been posted in the Italian quarters of numerous nearby cities and squads of natives are preparing to return home, Janeville Italians just at present have shown no tendency to take up arms against Austria. To date none have departed from the city and among the spokesmen, it was learned that it was doubtful if any would.

The Italian colony of Milwaukee was thrown into a fever of excitement late last night when the manifestos were first posted in prominent parts of the district. They are the result of the Italian government's worldwide movement to summon all its reserves to do military duty at home. While the order is not at all compulsory, it is pointed out that the men bound to return are those who were summoned by the king as they are not released from citizenship or duty when they depart from their native shores. The general order says nothing of penalty providing the men who fail to enlist return to their country at a later date. It applies to naturalized Italians, as well as to those who have not taken out their papers, as the treaty signed between the United States and the Italian government provides that citizenship here will not interfere with military duties of the men in Italy, providing they should return home.

Text of Manifesto.

The gist of the manifesto, as translated into English, follows: "The Italians of Wisconsin and Iowa, who are under the jurisdiction of the royal consular office in Milwaukee, are advised that every one having military obligations and belonging to the following classes are called to arms. They are requested to report to the said office for physical examination and enrollment. Said military people will be transported to Italy and return after the war is over. Those who are called to arms are: All officers and under officers now in active service. All those belonging to the royal carabinieri, which constitutes the financial guards who have done customs house duty. Militarists of the first and second category, classes 1885-95, of all arms and specialties. Militarists of the first and second category, constituting the artillerymen and civil engineers, chauffeurs and commissaries. Militarists of the first and second category, classes 183-34-35, belonging to the mountain artillery. Militarists of the first and second category, classes 1882-83, concerning Alpini, and class of 1885, concerning field artillery. The territorial militia, classes 1877-81, including chauffeurs, civil engineers and commissaries. Militarists of the third category, classes 1883-95.

PLANS FOR PAVING WILL BE SUBMITTED

Board of Public Works to Meet Today or Friday for Accepting Specifications.

Plans and specifications with the assessment schedule, as prepared by City Engineer C. V. Kerch, of the paving work to be done in Janeville this year, will be presented to the board of public works in their meeting which probably will be held Friday afternoon, previous to the council session. Specifications for the brick paving on Milton avenue have been nearly completed. It is those of the asphalt macadam work on Wisconsin and South Bluff streets. No figures of the costs could be given, as the board of public works take the figures under advisement before they are adopted and submitted to the city commission for hearings.

On Milton avenue the specifications call for about 6,000 square yards of brick standard brick to be laid on a concrete base of five inches. Between the concrete and brick there will be a cushion of one and a half inches of fine sand. The pavement is to be laid in two courses, the first course being laid in the center and the second on the sides. The brick paving will be over 4,800 square yards of four inch macadam laid from the brick pavement end to the curb line on each side.

This is the first instance, as far as is known, where a permanent pavement is to be laid down the middle of the street with macadam as a shoulder. This was done by the city commission to allow for the laying of sewer, water and gas connections in the future, and to prevent the tearing up of the pavement in case such improvement is ordered. All contractors and officials who have investigated the plans declare it will be a success and the result will be watched with interest because it will solve the paving problem of many cities of traffic highways leading out of the city.

The asphalt macadam jobs will total 6,443.50 square yards on Wisconsin and South Bluff streets. On Wisconsin, between South Third and Oakland avenue, there is 3,911 square yards to be laid in the two blocks, and counting the new order from Oakland avenue to Clark street there will be 2,532 square yards added to the amount originally ordered from South Second to Oakland avenue. On South Bluff street there will be about 195 yards of resurfacing of the plain macadam work.

The macadam of these streets is to be nine inches thick in the center and six inches thick at the gutter lines. The top two inches of the pavements is to be granite bound with asphalt poured two and a half gallons to the square yard.

PHILIP WHITEHEAD IN ADDRESS TO STUDENTS: HEAR CHARLES SEYMOUR

Students at the high school heard an interesting talk this morning by Philip Whitehead, son of Hon. John M. Whitehead of this city, on Rome, its ruins and the appearance of the Italian country. The student auditors were much taken up with the discourse, the speaker telling of some of his experiences in foreign lands. By special request, he will give a similar talk next week to the students.

This afternoon, the periods were shortened, to allow the students to listen to a lecture by Charles Seymour, noted platform lecturer, who gave a masterpiece on "The Great War." His lecture conveyed only the neutral side of the great conflict. Mr. Seymour is a historian, and has a list of some fifty historic lectures. His glimpse of the war and the various countries to the students was of great interest.

STILL THERE WAS CHEER

By NETTIE KENNER.

"I'm going to give up," Loretta declared, as she wearily pulled off her gloves. "I'm not going to be conceded any more."

"What a terrible resolution," chuckled her brother. "Fortunately you don't say it as if you meant it, so I shall not send for our family physician until I hear the details. What's up?"

"I traveled downtown this morning very well content with my looks and my clothes," Loretta explained, with a little line in her smooth brow. "Of course, I don't mean that I couldn't be improved on."

"Of course not!" "I merely mean," she went on without heading, "that considering the fact that it's me I look and dress pretty well. I was quite satisfied. I stopped at my dressmaker's to see about having that crepe meteor made in case I have enough of my allowance left to get one, and that is where I had my first shock."

"How on earth did madame hurt your young feelings?" "You needn't laugh! You wouldn't like to be told that you are too shallow to wear lavender or that you can't have one of the new girdles because it would call attention to the fact that one hip is higher than the other. I know you wouldn't."

"It would break my heart." "And that isn't all," sighed Loretta. "She said I'm so awfully narrow chested that I am just in style and can wear the waists that make you look so horribly skinny. I am going to take up gym work next week if I have any money left."

"You needn't try boxing with me. I value my life."

"I'm glad that somebody does. Well, listen to my tale of woe! From the dressmaker's I went to the milliner's. There my hat was ready to be sent home if I liked it—which I most emphatically did not. The back of it lay down on my collar in a most ridiculous way and I asked the milliner as nicely as I could to change it for me. She said she was afraid she could not do any better because I always insist on wearing my hair in a coil on top of my head. She said that when I wore the hat the way I like it there was an awful line from my collar to the top of my head that was extremely ugly. She said that this was the truth though she hated to say it."

"She'd Have to Swing the Skirt."

"No more than you hated to have her say it, I'll bet."

"I wasn't pleased. I took the hat, but when it comes home I'm going to put a whole newspaper in the back of it to keep me from looking like a toad-pole. Then every time anybody looks at me I'll think of that perfectly horrible line from my collar to the top of my head and shiver."

"If you only could cut off your head when you wear that hat!"

"I wanted blue," Loretta went on. "But that incorrigible milliner said black subdued my features better, so I got black. I've been wondering ever since which of my features need subduing. It'll end in my getting another hat, for my suit is brown."

"Oh, you got a suit?"

"That's what I went for, the fitting of my suit. I had to hurry because they don't like it a bit if you are five minutes late and they make you lose your appointment. They kept me waiting half an hour but that's different."

"Certainly."

"I had hardly put the skirt on when the fitter said that really she scarcely knew whether she was going to be able to make it do because I was so tall, you know. Then, too, she said, my hips were large and she'd have to swing the skirt a lot."

"Cheerful, wasn't she?"

"The hairdresser was just as bad," Loretta sighed as she gathered up her gloves and hat. "She said my hair is losing tone and luster every day. I came home after I'd been there. I was the last drop in the bucket."

"It's always darkest just before the dawn," suggested Loretta's brother. "You know that cousin of Al's from Philadelphia whom I introduced to you the other night? Well, he hung around the office all the afternoon asking when you'd be home, so I brought him back to dinner. He's up in my room drinking now."

"For goodness sake!" Loretta cried as she turned to run to her room. "If you aren't the worst! Why on earth didn't you tell me!"—Chicago Daily News.

VAN HISE OPPOSED TO HIGHER VARSITY FEE

University President Argues Against Larger Non-Resident Fee—Aylward Also Appeared.

Madison, Wis., June 2.—The senate committee on education was urged yesterday to make no further amendments in the Hambrecht tuition fee bill, its terms under the amendments added in the assembly being agreeable to both the author and President Van Hise. The latter made it plain, however, that he was opposed to the raise in fees at all. In view of the fact that three such increases have been made in recent years, it the bill had to pass, he favored it as amended in the assembly. The changes provide that the incidental fees be included in the amount to be charged non-residents, namely, $150 per year. This would be an increase of only $24 per year. It also allows the faculty and regents to award scholarships to certain worthy students in lieu of fees.

John A. Aylward appeared against the bill, following President Van Hise. Assemblyman Hambrecht was its proponent before the committee. Mr. Hambrecht said there is a statewide demand for the law, and that both the major parties made it a platform promise. The wide variety of opinion respecting the cost of instruction per student was due, he said, to the many factors entering into the problem. They varied from President Van Hise's figure, $149.05, to as high as $250. James A. Trotman placed it at $270. Mr. Hambrecht preferred to accept the latter. This did not take into account the building expense. President Van Hise said his own estimate based upon careful computations by the business manager, ranged from $150 to $160 when interest on the capital account was excluded from consideration.

Assemblyman Hambrecht declared that the overcrowding of the physics department, which makes the need of a new physics building so urgent, was due largely to the non-resident enrollment in that department. Hence he argued these students should pay a larger proportion of the cost. He insisted the university can maintain its cosmopolitan character under the change proposed.

M. S. Dodgeon, secretary of the free library commission, submitted an amendment to relieve non-resident students in the library school from high fees in view of the fact that while doing field work in Wisconsin libraries they contribute services of large aggregate monetary value to those communities.

President Van Hise said the present non-resident fees at the University of Wisconsin are twice as high as those charged by any other state university.

SHECKLES FOR WISCONSIN WHEN NEW YORK MAN DIES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., June 3.—The inheritance department of the state tax commission has just collected $45,256.42 from the estate of Maria De Witt Jesup of New York City. The death occurred on June 17, last, and the property on which the tax was levied were stocks in both the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Chicago & Northwestern roads. Inheritance Tax Counsel John Harrington has just completed the settlement.

TO SEEP WELL IN SUMMER.

Slight inflammation of the bronchial tubes causes a distressing cough and makes refreshing sleep impossible. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound covers raw, inflamed, irritated surfaces with a soothing, healing coating and stops that annoying tickling, relieving the racking, choking cough. Take this splendid cough medicine with you on summer trips. It is good for coughs, colds, croup, bronchial affections and la grippe coughs. W. T. Sherer.

LABOR FAMINE FEARED AS ITALIANS IN AMERICA RUSH TO WAR

Italians in Chicago enlisting for war.

A labor famine is feared in many large cities as Italians by thousands throw up their jobs and enlist for the war. It is estimated that at least ten thousand Italians in Chicago will leave soon for Italy. A much larger number is expected to enlist from New York city.

FRENCH HEAVY GUNS BATTERING THEIR WAY TOWARD LILLE

This remarkable picture shows the French heavy guns in action at the battle of Lens. As a result of the efficient work of these guns the French made an important advance toward Lille.

Bucolic Bliss.
Oh, how my yearning heart inclines
To trim the trailing radish vines,
And hoe the prunes that pleasures bring
To all who garden in the spring.

How eagerly each morn I rush
To view the pretty cabbage bush
And pluck fair blossoms on the lea
From branches of the turnip tree.

Oh, how I do await a chance
To hoe the lovely alive plants,
And pick potatoes from the vines,
And dig in my crab apple mines.

Bill Will Start Housekeeping.
Here is what a court awarded William Lindsey for the furnishing of a new home:

A Remington rifle, a double barreled shot gun, a tool box and hand saw, a gas lamp with hose connection, a tooth brush holder, a nickel plated soap dish, a cribbage board, a kitchen cabinet, a watch, a shoe hammer and last and a photograph of a friend.

His wife, Anna B. Lindsey, was granted a divorce on the ground of cruelty and was awarded $750 alimony.

Abas, the Picture Post Card.
Did you ever get a picture postcard that didn't say: "Having a perfectly delightful time. Wish you were here." What's the use making a fellow feel bad that way, anyhow?

Why Pianists Become Woolly.
"Do you still have to practice?"
"How long did you study?"
"How many hours a day do you practice?"

How long will it take before I can play the Second Rhapsody?
"Who is your favorite composer?"
"Just run your fingers over the keys so I can say I have heard you play."

Hints to June Brides.
It is well to send out the invitations early, thus preparing your friends. When they receive invitations late, say only a week before the wedding, they are often out of funds and the gifts may not be as numerous and costly as they would be otherwise.

Engraved invitations are expensive, we know, but it always pays to send out enough. Order about 300 more than you really need and send all of them. Everybody won't come. The proper way to have them read is as follows: "Mr. and Mrs. Jones request your presence at the wedding of their daughter Euphemia, etc."

How to Make a Magazine Story.

Take the following ingredients and mix thoroughly:

One tall, broad-shouldered, well-dressed hero, who is the son of a rich soap manufacturer.
One beautiful daughter of a pork packer, said daughter having been the school chum of the hero's sister.
One automobile.
One pale round moon.
One old maid aunt.
One thwarted lover.
One fake telegram.
One trip to Europe by the lady.
One hot pursuit by the gent.
One steam yacht.
One solitaire ring.
One minister.

Just an Idea. That's All.
Why not ask old Art Brisbane to settle the war, and have it all over with?

Wise Habit of Silence.

Give not thy tongue too great a liberty, lest it take thee prisoner. A word unspoken is, like the sword in the scabbard, thin; if vented, thy sword is in another's hand. If thou desire to be held wise, be so wise as to hold thy tongue.—Francis Quarles.

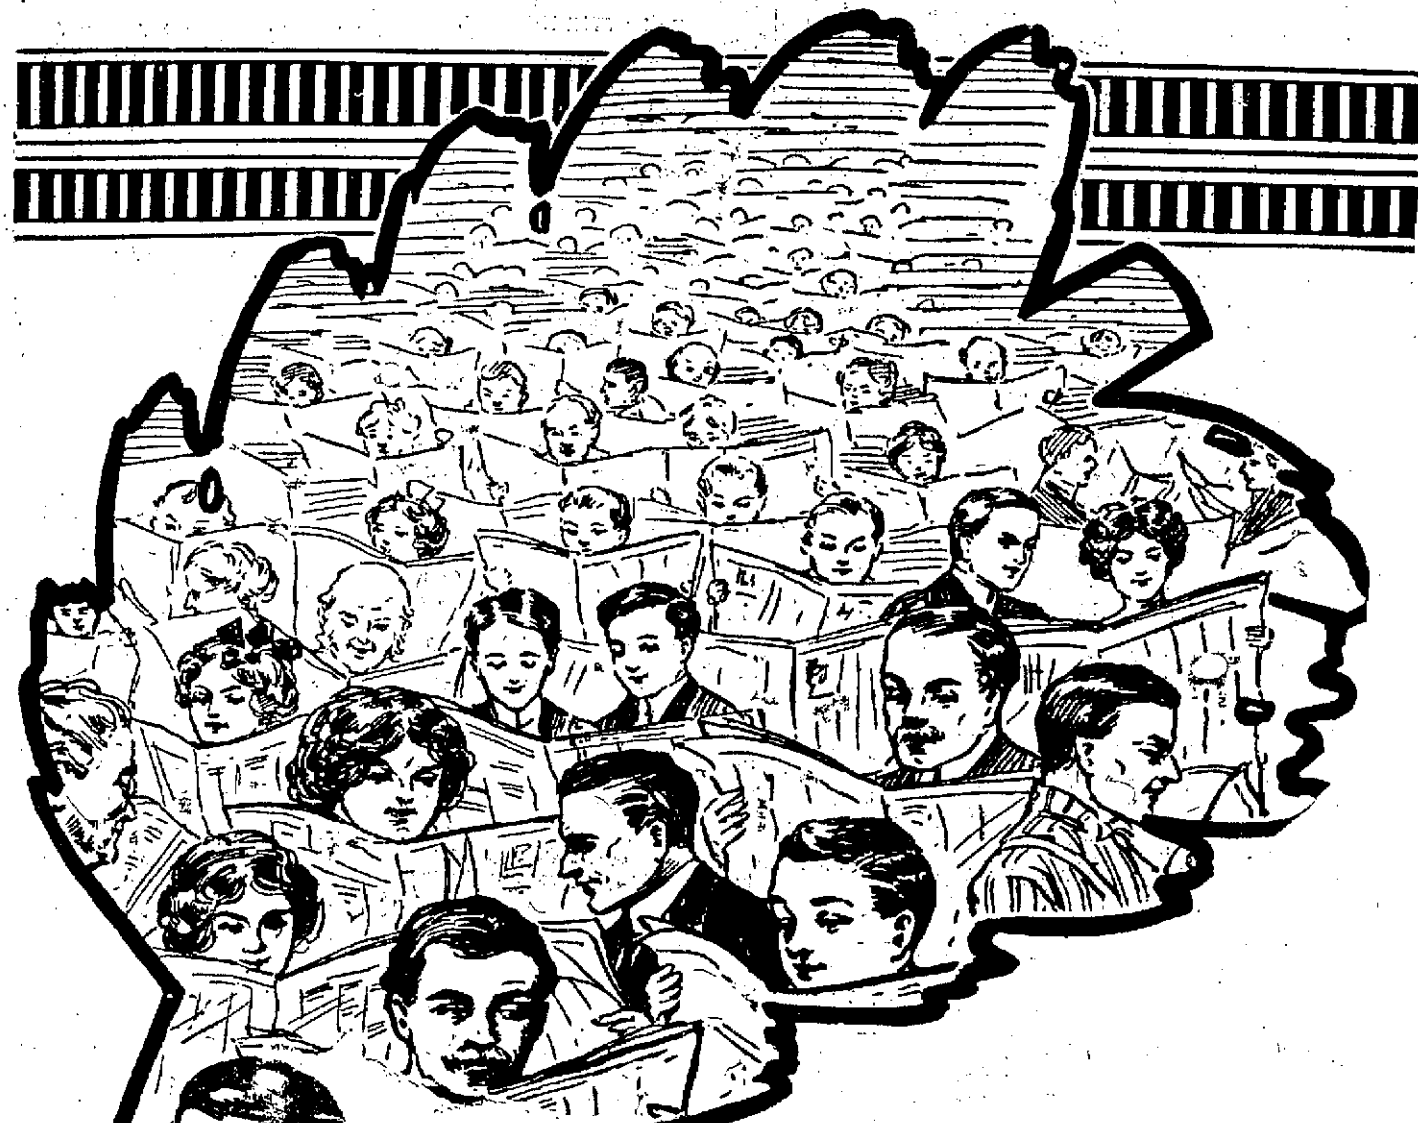

Gazette want ads. will act as your solicitor for business.

He Did Not.

Jeff de Angellis met a New York newspaper man. "Do you remember," asked the newspaper man, "one time, while you were playing in Kansas City, you offered $10 for the best original verse for your 'Women' song?" "I do," replied the comedian. "I won that ten." According to the laws of fiction, Mr. de Angellis should have said: "I've been looking for you for years. Here's $1,000 as a retainer. I want you to write me a comic opera." But he didn't. What he did say was: "Well, that's so long ago I guess we can be good friends, nevertheless."

Fern Was Peeved.

According to an eminent botanist, plants are so sensitive that they resent neglect and are susceptible to kind treatment, showing their gratitude in charming ways. We are therefore the more ready to believe a story told us a day or two ago by a lover of nature. He was watering a fern on a cold morning. He forgot to temper the water. The fern, incensed by the shock, leaped from the pot and bit him savagely in the leg.—Phillip Hale, in Boston Herald.

5 DAYS OF PRICE CUTTING

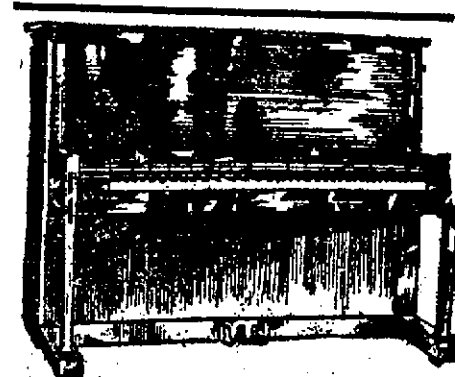

LAST fall when we advertised that we were going out of the Piano business we sold a large number of Pianos and saved many dollars for many of our costumers. Now comes the last chance and real saving as we had a chance a few weeks ago to have consigned to us at SUCH LOW PRICES that we could not help but to accept them and now we are going to give the people of Janesville a chance to save their dollars by buying their Pianos from us during the next 5 days.

When You Can Buy Practically New Pianos for Only $100, it is Time That You Get That Piano Now

T. C. Mitchell, State Sales Manager for the house that we had the goods consigned from will be here this week--wait on you and help you in making your selection. Come in and see him tonight.
